Gaza Military Cemetery and First World War
battles for Gaza:

At the end of March 1917, Gaza was attacked and surrounded by the Egyptian Expeditionary Force in the First Battle of Gaza, but the attack was broken off when Turkish reinforcements appeared. The Second Battle of Gaza, 17-19 April, left the Turks in possession and the Third Battle of Gaza, begun on 27 October, ended with the capture of the ruined and deserted city on 7 November 1917.

Corporal Joseph Cook was killed on 2nd November 1917, five days before the end of Third Battle of Gaza.

Some of the earliest burials were made by the troops that captured the city. About two-thirds of the total were brought into the cemetery from the battlefields after the Armistice. The remainder were made by medical units after the Third Battle of Gaza, or, in some cases, represent reburials from the battlefields by the troops who captured the city.

Reported in the Hinckley Times:

“Mrs Cook of the Horsepool, Burbage, has received the sad official news that her husband, Corporal Joseph Cook, was killed in action in Palestine on November 2nd.

On the outbreak of the war he was called up as a reservist and went out to France in September 1914. In May 1915, he was invalided home wounded. He had served eight years in India with the 2nd Leicesters. In January 1916 he was transferred to the Northhamptons and was sent out to Egypt.

Had he lived until Sunday he would have been a time-expired man, having completed 13 years serve with the Colours. He was 31 years of age and previous to the outbreak of war work for Messrs. Moore, Eady and Co. of Burbage”.
