

PRIVATE CHARLES R W BRADBURY 11967

1st Battalion Leicestershire Regiment

Killed in action Tuesday 21st December 1915

Born April 1889 Shepshed

Enlisted Hinckley 24th August 1914 Special reserve

Previous military service in the Territorials with the 1st Volunteer Battalion
Leicester Regiment

After recruits training posted to 3rd Reserve Battalion Leicester Regiment 3rd
September 1914

11th December embarks from France

27th January 1915 abrasion to finger, evacuated to Dieppe with gunshot to finger

15th May posted back to 3rd Battalion Leicester's

31st August 1915 Southampton to France

5th September joins first Battalion Leicester Regiment in field

Killed in action 21st December 1915

Died aged 27

Whitehouse cemetery, St. Jean-les-Ypres Belgium.

Son of James and Emily Bradbury, 19 Hawthorne Cottages, Britannia Rd, Burbage

Fiancé of Gertrude Ghent.

Brother of Mary Beasley, Sarah Campton. Mary Ann Payne. James Bradbury, Evelyn Bradbury.

Height 5ft 7ins

Brown hair

Brown eyes

Hosiery Clerk

Hawthorne Cottages

Memorials

St Catherine's Church Memorial

St Catherine's personal stone tablet, north Aisle.

The former Ancient Order of Foresters Memorial

Cast name marker from Rose Garden

Hinckley Times report:

Quite a gloom was cast over Burbage when the news became known that Private CRW Bradbury of the 1st Leicester Regiment was killed in action on 21st December.

The deceased who was 27 years of age was highly respected and well known throughout the village. For some years, he had been employed at Messer's Moore, Eady, Murcott & Goode, Burbage but prior to enlisting he was engaged at Messer's Johnson and Barnes at Kibworth.

He enlisted three weeks after war broke out and went to France in December 1914 to reinforce the 2nd Leicester's. He was wounded at La Basse and was invalided home in March 1915, with rheumatism.

He returned to France at end of August to reinforce 1st Leicester's.

The deceased was a member of the Burbage Constitutional Club and the Cricket Club

Writing to his parents at 19 Balls Lane, Quartermaster Sergeant Cummings of 'C' Company Leicester's says, "I am awfully sorry to have to write to inform you that Private Bradbury was killed on 21st December. He was killed instantaneously by a shell in his trench and did not suffer in the least. He is buried at St. Jean near the ruined Church and where we are putting a cross as soon as we can get one made. We all offer our sympathy in your loss and your loss must be tempered by the knowledge that he was a very good and cheerful soldier and could always be turned to to do his duty in the trenches".

Writing to the deceased fiancée, Miss Ghent of Three Pots Road, Burbage, Captain CW Furbision says, "It is with deepest regret that I write to tell you of the death of Private Bradbury of my Company. He was killed by a shell on the morning of the 21st and his death was instantaneous. We buried him at night and erected a cross over his grave. The number and position of the grave will be forwarded later to his parents. Bradbury was always a good fellow and I was very sorry he was killed. Will you please give my sympathies to his father and mother, whose address I have lost. I am returning the things that were in his pocket and a button which I cut off his coat for you".

A LOVE STORY

Charles was engaged to Gertrude Ghent, known to her family as Nellie, who lived at the Old Framework Knitter Cottages on Three Pots Road, now Coventry Road. Charles worked previously as a clerk at the factory at the end of Balls Lane now Britannia Road, living at 19 Hawthorne Cottages.

Ghent's Cottage, Coventry Road
Neighbour Bernard Rowe, 21 Hawthorne Cottages was killed in 1918.

Nellie Ghent & her mother
Neighbour Bernard Rowe, 21 Hawthorne Cottages was killed in 1918.

Charles was born in Shepshed, it is believed his father had remarried and moved to the area where Charles found employment, before moving to work in Kibworth where he worked as a clerk at the cashmere hosiery manufacturers of Johnson and Barnes. He may have lodged in the village although at one time busloads of workers were shipped in everyday from the local villages. At the outbreak of war, many of the workers enlisted together in the Leicester's and the Sherwood Foresters.

Gertrude was the first person to receive news of his death as the Army had lost the address of his family. They had discovered her details from the things in his pocket. She never married and wore his ring all her life. His photograph was in a small silver frame next to her bed.

A marble plaque to his memory was placed on the wall of north aisle near where she sat at Church services.

Gertrude died in 1970 and was buried in St Catherine's Churchyard.

